Cooking with Science: Potatoes

In this cooking show series, researchers from the US Department of Agriculture (USDA) team up with culinary experts to develop fresh new menus based on unique food products from the Agricultural Research Service (ARS). This episode features Chef Mark Mills with three tasty and easy to prepare dishes featuring potatoes. While Chef Mills prepares a vegetable hash, Spanish tortilla, and potato black bean burger, ARS researchers chime in on the history of the potato, its value in U.S. agriculture, and how we're making healthier, tastier potato cultivars that last longer in storage. Potatoes are one of the main crops grown in the U.S., with a production of approximately 22.5 million tons annually.
